PREPARING FOR AND CONDUCTING THE INTERVIEW

Developing Interview Questions:

There are several types of interview questions that might be asked. Depending on the type of position that is being interviewed for, the content of these questions should be modified to reflect the level and complexity of the position being recruited.

When preparing for an interview, first review the job announcement. Study the duties and responsibilities of the assignment and the job requirements to determine the knowledge, skills, and abilities necessary to perform the job. Determine the qualifications a candidate needs to successfully perform the job. Rank these qualifications in order of importance. Use these qualifications to develop your questions. Be sure to consider the major job duties and essential functions on the position description when creating your interview questions.

Structure the questions so the candidate will be able to answer with enough information for the Qualifications Appraisal Board to assess the candidate's competency relative to the questions. Questions may be asked about job-related knowledge and skills, education and training (if job related), type of experience and behavioral related questions.

Questions that are not directly job-related cannot be asked. This may include questions about:

Illegal Employment Inquiries
Subject	Definition	Examples of Illegal Inquiries
Name	Any inquiries regarding the candidate's current or previous names	What is your maiden's name? What is the origin of your name? Have you ever changed your name?
Residence	Questions regarding owning or renting a home	Do you live with anyone? How far is your commute?
Age	Any inquiry which may reveal candidate's age	When were you born? When did you graduate from high school?
National Origin/Citizenship	Any inquiry into birthplace, visa status, national origin or ancestry.	Where were you born? What is your native language?
Religion	Any inquiry which would identify religious denomination, beliefs, or religious observances	Do you observe any religious holidays? Do you belong to a church or a temple?
Sex & Marital Status	Any inquiry to indicate applicant's marital status and/or number of children Inquiries regarding pregnancy or birth control	Do you have a spouse or a partner? Do you plan to get married or have children?
Gender/Sexual Orientation	Any inquiry which would indicate applicant's gender or sexual orientation	What is your sexual orientation? Are you male or female?
Race/Color	Any inquiries around applicant's race or color	How do you identify racially? What's your ethnicity?
Disability	Any inquiry into the applicant's general health, medical condition, or mental/physical disability.	Do you need any accommodations to perform the job? Have you ever filed a workers' compensation claim?
Genetic Information	Any inquiry into current or past illness, medical/genetic information is not appropriate	How is your overall health status? When was the last time you visited the emergency room? Does your family have a history of chronic disease?
Military Service	Any inquiry into type of discharge, dates of service, or request for military service records	What type of discharge did you receive? Do you have any service-related injuries or disabilities?
Physical Appearance	Any inquiry or comment regarding candidate's physical appearance is not appropriate	How much do you weigh? Do you have any tattoos or piercings?

Conducting the Interview:

The goal is to objectively rate each candidate on their potential ability to perform the job successfully. Keep eye contact and show genuine interest in each candidate's qualifications. While each department's interviewing questions may differ, it is required to ask the same questions of each candidate per position. If you have doubts about the candidate's understanding of the question, or if their answer is not clear, try rephrasing the question to help clarify their response. Keep in mind the timeframe allotted to interview and allow each candidate enough time to thoroughly answer each question as well as potential follow up questions.

Evaluating the Candidate:

As a member of a Qualifications Appraisal Board, you must decide whether or not a candidate possesses the qualifications needed to perform the job. You should rank candidates according to the level or quality of knowledge, skills, education (if required) and abilities necessary to perform the job. It is essential to evaluate each candidate on an equal basis. All candidates should be asked the same set of interview questions (reviewed and approved by HR). Preferred qualifications listed on the position description should also be a consideration.

Interview Question Notes:

It is important for all members of the Qualifications Appraisal Board to legibly document candidate responses to all interview questions.
